as we see it

Britain is about to take the plunge into commercial television—well, almost. The Government there will set up a new TV service that will accept and telecast advertising, but will not permit sponsorship of programs.

Presumably, then, Government employees will select and produce the programs and every so often there will be spot announcements from advertisers. This will differ from the present setup in which Government employees select and produce the programs and there are no spot announcements from advertisers. Anyway, viewers there will finally have a choice of two channels.

Earl de la Warr, British Postmaster General, whose department is in charge of mail, telephones and telegraph besides radio and television, says, "There is a world of difference between accepting advertising and sponsoring. The press accepts ads, but they remain responsible for their own news columns . . . We are not going to adopt the American system of dependence upon sponsoring."

The good Earl apparently didn't consider that the press is an information medium and TV is primarily an entertainment medium. Nor did he see fit to mention that the press is not Government-controlled as is his British Broadcasting Corporation.

The American system he dislikes is private enterprise. Under that system the viewer, by accepting or rejecting a program, eventually decides what he is to see on television. The choice is not made for him by a network, a sponsor, or a Civil servant. If a sponsor's show does not attract an audience or sell goods, a new show, one that does please the audience and sell goods, must be found.

We don't care too much whether or how the British get advertising on television, but let them stop knocking our system, which is doing pretty dogged well.—M. P.

HOW THEY MAKE SUPERMAN FLY

It's a film trick, kiddies,
so don't try any take-offs

IT IS a mark of the deepest affection that the production crew which earns its daily bread by shooting the Superman TV film series refers to its star, George Reeves, as "Stuporman." In any other business, this would be insulting. In Hollywood, it is the accolade.

Reeves, a man who looks a good deal younger than he is, is as good-natured a hero as is extant in TV today. He carries the Superman role on his broad shoulders with a delicate sense of balance, kidding himself when among adults but taking it dead seriously when among the younger fry. To him, Superman is a cross between a job and a dedication. The same sense of dedication, inspired by Reeves' own genuine feeling on the subject, is evident in the attitude of the crew when one of them says, "Well, let's get Stuporman into his rig and get moving."

They're kidding on the square, ashamed to admit baldly that they go for this business of playing hero to the kids, yet at the same time sharing a secret satisfaction in knowing they have a part in doing exactly that.

It is perhaps a commentary on our souped-up way of life that something dedicated to the kids of our time can be turned out on an assembly-line basis with little or no "heart" deliberately injected into the proceedings. An A. A. Milne could sit down at his leisure, turn his thoughts to the happy-faced little tykes of his era, and then lovingly pen his stories about Christopher Robin and Sir Edward Bear and Roo. Superman, with a five-films-in-two-weeks shooting schedule staring it in the face, has no time for such airs. The button is pushed, the script is ground out, the cameras turn and another Superman film is finished.

Youngsters Most Important

The indefinable "heart" of the show springs from Reeves himself and from Whit Ellsworth, the producer. Contrary to some opinion, Hollywood is not entirely populated by pompous oafs and dollar-mad sharpshooters. Reeves and Ellsworth, while not at all averse to turning a profit from the venture, are genuinely concerned with the influence Superman has on a generation of youngsters to whom Tom Swift is an old-fashioned fuddy-duddy who couldn't do anything more sensational than make a motorcycle or a flying ship or a submarine—sheer child's play in these hectic times.

Reeves and Ellsworth are chiefly concerned at the moment with the tendency of more than one youngster to take up solo flying as an avocation. If Superman can do it without wings or other visible means of support, so can they — with disastrous results. Thus the Superman crew is now rushing to completion a film short in which Reeves, as Superman, explains that only he has the power to fly and that no one else must ever try it.

Actually, of course, Reeves' flying stunts are simplicity itself to anyone even vaguely familiar with the theater — which automatically must include anyone who ever saw Maude Adams or Betty Bronson fly clumsily about the premises in their stage presentations of Peter Pan. Hollywood has improved on the original with the use of trick photography, produced almost entirely in the laboratory — and Reeves' dramatic entrance into a scene more often than not is accomplished by the simple expedient of having him stand on a five-foot ladder just out of camera range and leap easily into the proceedings. The power of suggestion makes the illusion quite complete, particularly to the youngsters.

Reeves Isn't Weapon-proof

Reeves' toughest problem, oddly enough, is that of making personal appearances. Because Superman is supposed to be impervious to such things as bullets, knives and other weapons, he is a natural proving ground for the younger inquiring mind. Also naturally, Reeves wants no part of such field tests and has had to decree that his personal appearances as Superman be made on-stage in a theater, where he at least has a sporting chance to catch any sharp-honed or blunt-edged objects that might be tossed at him in a purely scientific but at the same time highly dangerous manner.

Based on the long-popular comic strip of the same name, Superman deals with the activities of Clark Kent and Lois Lane, star reporters of The Daily Planet, who keep running into crime and other adventure stories which invariably need the valiant services of Superman. Kent, of course, is Superman in disguise, which explains how Superman always seems to know precisely where he's needed.

Lois Lane, Kent's sidekick in these matters, is currently being played by Noel Neill, who played the same role in the original motion picture serial version of Superman. Phyllis Coates, however, had the part for the first 26 films, which are still making the rounds in many cities. Jimmy Olsen, the inevitably confused cub reporter, is played by Jack Larson, while a veteran character actor, John Hamilton, roars pleasantly through the series as Perry White, editor of The Daily Planet.

Reeves himself, the two-ply star of the proceedings, is a thoroughly likeable man with a ready grin, a keen sense of humor and no illusions about his importance in the TV hierarchy.

In between his Superman chores, he has appeared recently in such pictures as The Blue Gardenia, Bugles in the Afternoon and From Here to Eternity, as well as in a number of TV dramatic films. Superman he takes genially in stride, albeit with a strong undercurrent of responsibility to the kids. He has given up smoking, believing that Superman should never be seen with a cigaret—and not trusting himself to confine his smoking behind closed doors.

He also makes a point of never being seen with a girl, an even more difficult proposition considering that he is an attractive bachelor.

Santa Claus

ON YOUR TV SET

Warren Hull with youngsters on Strike It Rich program.

"I wish I wuz a whipped cream pie, As gooey as can be; I wish I wuz a whipped cream pie, On Ladies Date I'd be."

For this literary effort Mrs. Edythe Guzik, of Jackson Heights, N. Y., received first prize in a Ladies Date jingle contest—a $400 chrome and porcelain gas range.

Her experience is typical of the way in which many viewers are discovering the "Santa Claus" in their TV sets.

Over at Strike It Rich, where as much as $9000 a week could be picked up ($400,000 was given away last year), Warren Hull asks money-backed questions.

The Big Payoff, replacing the Colgate Comedy Hour this summer, upped the afternoon ante of $7000 in merchandise to $10,000. In a year and a half on TV, Emcee Randy Merriman and Bess Myerson have handed out $750,000 worth of clothes, plus 52 mink coats, 104 round trips to Europe and 25 automobiles.

On Break the Bank, where the bank holds any amount from $500 to $13,000, the payoff is for answers to questions.

A typical question involved naming the one-time ambassador to Spain who was married to Lillian Russell. A Pittsburgh man broke the bank with this one. It was Ambassador Alexander T. Moore, also from Pittsburgh.

On Two for the Money, conducted by Herb Shriner, the average combined take for three couples is $1500, but recently, two Navy men walked off with $3600.

Although the questions are easy, contestants are haunted by the ticking of a clock and the sounding of a buzzer when they are wrong. One man slowed himself down considerably when, in listing words rhyming with tune, he said, "Moon, spoon, and if you'll pardon the expression, spittoon."

The real fun quiz, You Bet Your Life, the sixth most popular TV show in the country, achieved its status because of Groucho Marx. Money is incidental to Groucho's wit.

In the past year, two sets of contestants, unshaken after a bout with the master, walked off with over $6000 each from the jackpot alone. Most people, however, "break up" in the entanglement. Typical quip: Bachelor: "I've been cooking for 56 years." Groucho: "You must be pretty well done by now."

Or: Airline pilot: "I've just imported 56 harem girls to an Arab sheik."

Groucho, "It must have been thrilling to see 56 girls take off."

The pilot: "The proper pronunciation of the word sheik is shake."

Groucho: "With 56 girls, I'd think it would be shock."

This brand of humor is scarcely in the same league with that of a show on which an emcee smeared with whipped cream is considered the funniest sight of the day. But if you plan to supplement the family income through giveaways, the smaller the show, the greater your chance.

Money For Problems

A number of other shows, some of them new, are adding to the flow of money from television. On Your Account, with Win Elliot as master of ceremonies, presses cash on people with problems. Beat the Clock, with Bud Collyer and Roxanne, is one of the game-type giveaways with merchandise and money as prizes.

Fred Allen's new show, Judge For Yourself, introduces talent-judging as a contest and has up to $2000 in prizes. Name That Tune, with Red Benson and Vicki Mills, uses musical clues. The new Jan Murray show, Dollar A Second, is a quiz in which the contestants race against time.

Bert Parks hands out the cash on Double Or Nothing and Jack Smith does the honors on Place The Face, although apart from the cash they are widely different shows. Bud Collyer also has introduced a new one, On Your Way.

Not Everybody Wins

The theory that giveaways shower loot about at random is debunked by the fact that most of them, like all other TV productions, are carefully budgeted. The big payoff, for instance, occurs once in every two to three weeks, or to one out of every 40 contestants. Bank-breakers fare about the same. Conceivably, any contestant could have the answer to any question. But as one giveaway's press agent said, "When we're over our budget, a contestant's chance of knowing the answer to the big money question is on a par with knowing the serial number on the $5 bill in my wallet."

Grass skirts and ukes: George and Jack give it their best Hawaiian treatment.

The beach boys: Jack denies his trunks are made from Bing's discarded shirts.

Holiday in HAWAII

Jack is paddling his canoe on dry land just to show he can do it the hard way.

This is easier: Jack explains that he's just fiddling around while George burns.

Shuffle off to Buffalo: the routine is familiar for two veteran vaudevillians, but Jack and George will find it's a long way from Waikiki Beach to New York State.

Two of the Nation's greatest comedy teams, George Burns and Gracie Allen and Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, spent vacations together at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu.

When George and Jack hit the beach, all Hawaii braced itself for a new high in comedy antics. But it turned out that, when clowning for their own amusement, the million-dollar comedians do just about the same stunts as the rest of us. The cameraman caught a fair sampling.

As George said to Jack: "We're here just for fun. What do they want us to do, bring our writers along?"

Mary Livingstone, left, and Gracie Allen join their husbands: Jack was back in time to do his September 13 show, George and Gracie's new series will begin October 5.

Dan Jenkins reports:

MARY SHIPP, the Miss Spalding of the now dormant Life With Luigi show and wife of CBS Vice-President HARRY ACKERMAN, is the final choice for the Jane Stacy role in My Friend Irma, replacing CATHY LEWIS . . . Much of the background film has already been shot.

GORDON MAC RAE has set up a corporation to produce a film series of his own now that he's out from under his Warner Bros. contract. Warners, incidentally, now have only five stars under exclusive contract . . . RCA-NBC will have sunk no less than $25,000,000 into color TV by the end of this year.

DAVID NIVEN and CHARLES BOYER have wound their season's Four Star Playhouse chores in advance, freeing NIVEN to make a picture in London and BOYER to play the lead opposite MARY MARTIN in "Kind Sir" on Broadway, opening Nov. 4 . . . Chicago Teletype TV's Week: Among the new stations mushrooming up along the coaxial cable is WICS, Channel 20, Springfield, Ill.

Moro

Chicago TV alumnus Milt Friedland, formerly of WBKB and WBBM-TV, is general manager. WICS expects to launch operations Oct. 1 as an affiliate of all four networks.

Barbara Moro, the gone but not forgotten girl at WBKB, is again punching in at Channel 7. Babs has replaced Don Dowd as commercial announcer on The Childcraft Show.

Belated kudos to auto magnate Jim Moran whose efforts in behalf of the City of Hope netted $105,421 during the Labor Day Telethon on WGN-TV.

Don't blame them if the Super Circus cast seems a little more exuberant than usual on their Oct. 4 telecast. They'll be celebrating their fifth TV milepost.

Eloise Kummer, Chicago radio actress, has been signed to replace Paula Huston in the Nancy Bennett role on WNBQ's serial, The Bennetts. Also added to the cast are Helen Stenborg and Barnard Hughes, man and wife acting team who have been Tenthouse Summer Theater regulars for several years.

WBKB's ceaseless search for new talent has resulted in the signing of two more local performers: Sally Stewart, auto-harpist and folk singer, and Buddy Moreno, guitar-playing vocalist.

Advance Tips on Shows: Francois Pope is readying some fancy dishes for network consumption. He'll have a 10 AM Saturday spot, starting Oct. 3 on NBC's owned and operated stations in Washington, Cleveland, N. Y. and Chicago.

NBC has finally filled its Monday night void opposite Lucy. Network execs are inserting their boy wonder, Dennis Day, to try his hand at deflating Lucy's sky-high ratings.

Studs Terkel and Chet Roble are switching their setting from a bistro to a warehouse. Their Monday night time on WBKB will be taken over Oct. 5 by a newsreel, Page One, News and Sports. But Studs and Chet are bouncing right back for a new sponsor, same channel, in another time slot, undetermined at press time.

TELEVISION AT ITS BEST

by JACK MABLEY

As a victim of the nation's education system in the 20's and 30's, I was exposed to the multiplication table, The Declaration of Independence, the sex life of a bean, Shakespeare, and The Canterbury Tales.

None of them took. I particularly resented Chaucer and Shakespeare because they made even less sense than the multiplication table. And the teachers got kind of crabby because they weren't getting across.

This leads to the middle age—mine—and the TV Playhouse which is aired on NBC Sunday nights. They presented Othello, by William Shakespeare, and for the first time I felt the full power of this man's writing. It's my hope and belief that millions of other lowbrows enjoyed this invigorating experience.

I have no criterion by which to judge the performances in Othello. By the standards with which I am familiar—television acting—I have never seen finer acting on the air.

The production of Shakespeare for the masses is an ambitious undertaking. I saw Mickey Rooney and Olivia DeHavilland in Midsummer Night's Dream in the old Auditorium Theater. It was quite large. Laurence Olivier's movie of Hamlet was enhanced by the tremendous sets, artistic photography, the color, and the beauty of Jean Simmons.

The production of Othello on Sunday night was unusually simple. The set was large, but dramatically plain. The burden was entirely on the actors. It's difficult to imagine them doing any better.

Well, I'm always squawking about the bad writing on TV. If Shakespeare's the answer, let's have more.

I have caught up with a relatively new program called My Son Jeep, which for some reason reminds me of the old Warner Brothers movies when Eugene Pallette always played the rich father of the heroine, Frank McHugh was the Irish cop, and Pat O'Brien the football coach.

My Son Jeep is just as stereotyped in its characterizations. A Eugene Pallette libeled all bank presidents by playing a bank president. There was a Marjorie Main as the philosophical old housekeeper, and a few other standards. It was a nice bit of fluff, particularly suitable for juveniles.

Another look at Fred Allen's new show, and I'm afflicted with a renewed determination to go down as the nut who liked Fred Allen and Super Ghost on television. I just enjoy sitting and listening to Allen, trying to guess which of his jokes are written and which are ad lib ad libs. That other garbage that clutters up the program is merely a relief from Allen. We wouldn't want to listen to Allen for half-an-hour steady. Or would we?

Michigan State Looms as

ONE of the oldest axioms in sports has it that you can't pick against a winner, and on that basis, I have to select Michigan State, the nation's number one team last year, to dominate the Big Ten now that the school begins conference competition.

Certainly it would be hard to go against a team that hasn't been defeated or even tied since early in the 1950 season and has hung up the spectacular record of 24 straight victories.

With such stars returning as quarterback Tom Yewcic, whose brilliance as a field general and a passer won him national recognition last year, the Spartans seem set in the backfield. Also State won't suffer too much up front where Biggie Munn will have an all-veteran forward wall.

Yes, the Spartans look to be too-quality deep to suffer many, if any losses, despite the fact that as usual the team's schedule will be an arduous one, with every team pointing for a chance to upset the perennial winners.

Without reservation I pick them to capture the Big Ten Championship.

Ohio State Second

After Michigan State, I think that Ohio State looms as the most formidable of the Big Ten teams.

Bulwark of the team again will be quarterback John Borton, who completed better than 50 per cent of his passes last year.

Purdue's Boilermakers, who got a piece of the conference championship last year, are plagued with the problem of developing a passing successor to the brilliant Dale Samuels, and an end as good as Bernie Flowers.

But five lettermen are returning, and I feel that Stu Holcomb will field a team good enough to capture the number three spot in the Big Ten ratings.

Because Wisconsin's quarterback Jim Haluska will be out of action I think that triple-threat Paul Giel's Minnesota team which will have 29 returning lettermen will move up into the fourth slot, and that Coach Ray Eliot's Illini will also move up in front of Wisconsin provided Eliot can find a quarterback replacement for Tommy O'Connell.

I think that Wisconsin, which still has the burly All-American candidate, Alan Ameche, at fullback, will rate number six in the standings, and that Michigan will finish seventh.

Both Iowa and Northwestern have 27 returning lettermen, but my nod goes to Northwestern to finish eighth, largely because of the passing duo of quarterback Dick Thomas and end Joe Collier.

Selected to wind up in the cellar for the second straight year will have to be Indiana, which still rates in the unproved category despite 21 lettermen returning from last year.

As for Notre Dame—there used to be an unwritten law which listed four

by
JOHN HARRINGTON

things in sports whose supremacy the knowing sports follower could trust.

One was Joe Louis—another was the Bears football team, while the other two were the Yankees and Notre Dame.

Louis has retired from the ring—the Bears are not quite what they used to be, but what was said about the Yankees and the Irish still goes.

Every year at this time, Frank Leahy who in 12 years at South Bend has achieved a record of 98 victories, against 13 losses and eight ties, reaches for a crying towel and wails "we could lose them all" or words to that effect.

In fact, Frank tearfully makes the assertion that his team might be "lucky to get even a first down this season."

I not only think that Notre Dame will make a few first downs this year, but feel that if Michigan State should run a cropper in the Big Ten somewhere along the line, which is very possible, that the Irish may well go on to make a sweep of national honors.

Johnny Lattner, Neil "Bull" Worden,

Joe Heap and Paul Reynolds are guaranteed to give the South Benders a truly powerful array of ground gainers. The big man again figures to be All-American Johnny Lattner.

Veterans again will work up front and overall, the Irish look to be as tough as they come, even though the team will again engage in a 10-game so-called "suicide schedule." Just don't pick against them.

All-Star Big Ten Team

Probably the most difficult selection of them all to make is that of a championship team composed of stars from each Big Ten school.

While it's reasonable to assume that a team which was successful last season will continue to click, provided it retains sufficient manpower, it is much more difficult to pick individual stars since the switch from the two-platoon to the single platoon system.

However, here goes an all-star team which I believe would do any conference proud. Naturally, a good many fine players must, of necessity, be left off the team, but it can't be helped.

by MOLLY POTKIN

COPYRIGHT 1953

Boys and girls, here is an easy way to draw your own picture of our friend, Howdy Doody. Just read the poem which tells you what to do. Then, make your drawing on a separate piece of paper and mail it to Mollycues, c/o TV GUIDE, 731 S. Plymouth Ct., Chicago 5, Ill. before Monday, Oct. 5.

For the best entry, I'll award $1; second prize, 50 cents; next 25 prizes, a copy of my big picture and puzzle book. Neatness and originality counts.

The mistakes in last week's puzzle were: 1. Howdy Doody was called Clarabell; 2. Kukla was called Ollie; 3. The Kuklapolitans have a puppet show, not a circus show; 4. Howdy talked about his four friends and there were only three; 5. Mr. Bluster said there were no mistakes.

August 21 Mollycue Winners

James Agazzi, Joliet, Ill.; Bruce Berberlan, Chicago; Kenny Brunke, Skokie, Ill.; Diane Buiza, Gary, Ind.; Janice Calkins, Chicago; Lillian Collins, Richmond, Va.; Carolyn Darch, Chicago; Jo Doolittle, St. Joseph, Mich.; Ruth Duvick, Newark, Ill.; Lester Gertz, Chicago; Marie Glinn, Hammond, Ind.; Sherry Greig, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Sandra Guse, Marengo, Ill.; Kathleen Hammar, Chicago; Dale Harris, Woodstock, Ill.; June Hendricks, North Chicago, Ill.; Corky Isaacs, Chicago; Mary Keller, Waukegan, Ill.;

Please address all letters to Managing Editor, TV GUIDE, 731 S. Plymouth Ct., Chicago 5, Ill.

Meo-w-w-w-w!

I just got through watching Name's The Same and I can't get over how fat Ann Sothern looks. If she expects to have a popular program, she had better watch her diet.—J.A.H., McHenry, Ill. (Have you seen Ann's slick figure on Private Secretary lately?—Ed.)

Too Bad

Help! Help! I bet my wife that Mario Lanza has appeared on television at some time. If he has, as a guest or whatever (drama, singing, etc.), I win. If he has never appeared, I lose. (My wife will exact her pound of flesh.)

Could you do a bit of research and please notify me?—Emil A. Kuester, Racine, Wis. (You lose. Did it hurt?—Ed.)

Tourney Fans Take To Toni

May we thank and compliment you for sponsoring the TV GUIDE Celebrity Golf Tourney because through it, we met a girl whom we think is one of the most unaffected persons on TV: Toni Gilman. We followed her wherever we could on the golf course, and she didn't mind one bit. We actually made pests of ourselves but we didn't hear one unfriendly word from Toni. Later we visited the Down You Go show and were again graciously received backstage by Toni. We think she's grand.—Marlene Kaplowitz and Sue Siefferman, Chicago.

Storm Over Storm Boys

To Disgusted of Chicago: Get hep! Gale Storm's boys are only human. I am 15, the child of well-paid parents and I like nothing better than levis, a sharp shirt and a pair of gym shoes. That's living! All the normal younger kids in our neighborhood run around just like the Storm boys and they love it!—A Visitor from Cleveland, Ohio.

Man On the Go - Football Break Into "Q" Line-up

by WM. A. QUE

Q's "Man in Motion" has come to roost with a new plum. Alex Dreier has taken over the WMAQ-NBC 6:00 PM network news spot with a program that offers a change of pace from common teletype-readings and commentaries. Tune to Alex Dreier—Man On the Go and you'll hear the latest news, interesting sketches of people in the news and a new department called "What happened to?" in which Dreier will review the current standings of people and places that were formerly headline makers.

Alex is willing to try anything to broaden his newsgathering techniques and broadcasting success. In the event you didn't know, the guy has quite a number of mike marks of distinction: predicting Truman's upset victory in 1948; forecasting the route Rommel took in his North African romp; calling the shot on France's fall during World War II. The itch and drive Alex put to such good use in these big stories is being exerted to make the special features of this new International Harvester news program a new chapter in radio news reporting.

The place and time to catch up with Alex Dreier—Man On the Go and the news is 670 on your radio at 6:00 PM, Monday thru Friday.

* * * *

Operation Gridiron takes over the Q-Waves tomorrow as WMAQ presents the first broadcast in its season lineup. Every Saturday afternoon Sportscaster Joe Wilson will describe the play of a top game involving teams from the Big Ten and Notre Dame. Take a soft seat at 670 tomorrow and kick off the season by hearing the Michigan vs. Washington tilt from Ann Arbor.

Joey Giambra vs. Tuzo Portuguese. (middleweights.)

JIMMY POWERS' RATING: Giambra is rated 6th. Fights, 36. Won, 34. Lost, 2. K.O.'s, 19. Portuguese is rated 12th. Fights, 71. Won, 53. Lost, 13. Drew, 5. K.O.'s, 23. This is a return match in Giambra's home town. In their last meeting on June 20th, Giambra was floored in the 8th round by a left hook and just managed to beat the count. He took the decision on a round taken from Portuguese because of a low blow. Giambra hasn't boxed since. Tuzo defeated Jesse Turner a month ago at Milwaukee. I'll string along with Giambra.

REVLON MIRROR THEATER

Now you take that "What's My Act?" that we've got in the Empire Room. There's a show that's got every thing—comedy, singing, dancing and great new stars—and you just can't hardly get them kind of shows no more.

Dear Boss:

Do you agree that one of television's few excuses for existence during the last hot spell was the terrific interview with Nat King Cole on the HOWARD MILLER SHOW?

To keep my investment in TV from being a complete waste I learned I could turn the set on to Channel 13 and read by the light of the tube.

I hope the Fall Replacements to replace the Summer Replacements are as good as you said they will be.

Once, a long time ago, I had a sudden feeling of compassion for sponsors. There they were, the poor bankrollers who brought all those lovely old "Houses Across the Bay" into our living rooms -- surely they deserved our sympathetic attention when they beamed their commercials our way. But son-of-a-gun, my compassion has cooled considerably in the face of the dull and lengthy pitches they've been reworking lately.

I think we viewers do have an obligation, sure, but so does the sponsor. Why not challenge them to come up with some really new and different sales pitches -- let them use some imagination.

Has there been a really new commercial idea since the old SIMPLY SIMON program introduced the satire technique and since Arthur Godfrey threw away the ad agency script, sat down and brewed himself a pot of Lipton's tea and drank it right there in front of an enslaved populace?

Don't answer that question, Boss. Answer this one, instead. If the sponsors will try to give us a better break, will you repay their effort with a special observance I'll modestly call The Chub McCarthy Be-Kind-To-Sponsors Week?

CHUB.

12:00 (5) (9) WORLD SERIES

Brooklyn Dodgers (Manager: Charles Dressen)
vs. New York Yankees (Manager: Casey Stengel)

First two games from Yankee Stadium. Third and fourth games from Ebbets Field. Fifth game, if necessary, from Ebbets Field. Sixth and seventh games if necessary from Yankee Stadium.

Sportscasters: Mel Allen, Jack Brickhouse

Lineups: Subject to change.

BROOKLYN

19 Gilliam	2B

Pitchers: 17 Erskine, 28 Roe, 34 Meyer, 25 Milliken, 30 Loes

Brooklyn Bench: Infield: 2 Morgan; 5 Belardi. Outfield: 8 Shuba; 32 Antonello; 29 Thompson; 38 Williams. Catcher: 10 Walker. Pitchers: 41 Labine; 18 Hughes; 45 Podres; 46 Wade; 49 Black.

NEW YORK

15 Collins	1B
9 Bauer	RF
8 Berra	C
7 Mantle	CF
14 Woodling	LF
1 Martin	2B
10 Rizzuto	SS

Pitchers: 30 Lopat, 16 Ford, 17 Raschi, 22 Reynolds, 11 Sain

New York Bench: Infield: 6 Carey; 42 Coleman; 36 Mize; 45 Bollweg. Outfield: 25 Noren; 28 Renna. Catchers: 29 Silvera; 32 Houk. Pitchers: 18 McDonald; 21 Kuzava; 23 Miller; 24 Gorman.

Facts and Figures: This is the fifth straight pennant for the New York Yankees.

There are many ifs in the starting lineups:

Furillo's injury to his hand may affect Brooklyn's starting lineup. If he can't play Hodges will probably go to right field and the hard-slugging Belardi to first.

Jerry Coleman may see action at second.

Stengel might also gamble with Johnny Mize at first.

If a left-hander starts for the Dodgers, Bauer will start in the outfield; if a right-hander starts, Noren will probably get the nod from Stengel.

Roxanne

MODELS THE NEW

Sweaters

THE traditional sweater, the all-time love and classic of women's dress, returns to the fashion scene this year as news. Sweaters go everywhere from supermarkets to cocktail parties and, happily, seem at home in all places.

Roxanne, hostess of Beat the Clock, says she would rather put money into a good sweater than an expensive dress, because, "Sweaters last longer, never go out of style and they always are in good taste."

Roxanne models a coral wool sweater with navy checkerboard trim. The loose-fitting dolman sleeves are in the new three-quarter length and have turn-back cuffs. Her favorites also include a wool cardigan in pastel pink, and an Orlon cardigan with felt applique, patterned into petals and accented with pearls.

She suggests that a set of Peter Pan collars will do wonders for any sweater collection. A collar covered with felt flowers or beading can be snapped onto a cardigan to transform it into an evening jacket. Pearl or rhinestone buttons add another interesting touch to the cardigan. For an evening out, she often wears a pull-over with ball fringe and a black velvet cummerbund.

For the budget-minded woman, Roxanne considers the new sweater look a dream. With an assortment of sweaters, a few basic skirts and a little originality, she can turn these into a full fall wardrobe.

Durward Kirby: TV's biggest giveaway.

COMIC Garry Moore, forever on the prowl for gimmicks to add to his daytime TV pleaser, decided recently that it was about time he staged a stupendous giveaway. Scanning the premises of CBS's Mansfield Theater for the biggest item to give away, Garry's eyes went no further than his strapping six-foot-four-inch announcer, Durward Kirby. Big Durward, it was decided, would have to go.

As resigned to his fate as a latter-day Patrick Henry, Kirby was immediately made the subject of a contest: "Why I Want Durward Kirby For My Very Own." The housewives' reaction to "owning" Moore's wavy-haired sidekick for 48 hours was amazing. Five hundred entries poured in every day.

Started In Chicago

Actually, Durward's comic abilities were discovered years ago on the Chicago-originated Club Matinee which starred Garry and Ransom Sherman. Although he was billed as the program's announcer, Rance and Garry put Kirby through the same sort of comedy shenanigans he pulls off on the Moore show.

Durward uttered his first tone into a microphone as a student announcer at Purdue University. After graduating, he landed a job with a radio station in nearby Indianapolis. In Cincinnati and later in Chicago he built up a reputation as a competent commercial spieler and special events man and in 1941 Kirby won the H. P. Davis Announcer's Award.

Durward Is Versatile

When Garry made his TV debut on CBS, he asked Durward to "live it up" with him as on Club Matinee. Since then Kirby's announcing chores on the Moore show have really been secondary. As announcers go, he is easily the most versatile in the business.

Those thousands of letter writers who wanted to "own" Durward knew exactly what first prize meant. Not just Kirby, but Winston L. Mittenjuice, the wisecracking hayseed who thinks he's irresistible to women. Lots of others, too. An East Indian swami, an Italian chef, a quack doctor named Beebe. They're all Durward Kirby, one commercial announcer who found the perfect formula for getting strict attention: he went out and got an act.

BOB & RAY'S HUMOR
IS MILDER, MUCH MILDER

ONE THING can be said about the satirical team of Bob and Ray: they are hardly a household word. Possessed with a sly, tongue-in-cheek impudence and a healthy disregard for some of the more sacred items of our times, the spoofers have about the same general appeal that might be accorded a Bach fugue or a T. S. Eliot couplet. As one network official explained it, "What Arthur Godfrey's got, Bob and Ray ain't."

Even the hoards of star-struck bobby-soxers who can leaf through their smudged autograph books and show you signatures of the entire Aldrich family, every panelist on Juvenile Jury (including its alumni) and a few page boys to boot, will admit that two fellows named Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding have somehow escaped their attention.

Unless tipped off in advance, an uninitiated viewer watching the Bob and Ray brand of straight-face humor for the first time might just furrow his brow in bewilderment and switch channels. Other folks, who realize Bob and Ray are making exquisite fun of some of their favorite television performers, are apt to turn the dial in protest. Still others, who prefer their humor broader, don't care for Bob and Ray for the same reason they don't care for rutabagas.

The boys themselves realize that rating-wise they'll probably never crash the upper atmosphere populated by the Lucys, the Berles and the other chosen ones. Says Ray, perhaps a little too pessimistically, "I'd guess that only one person out of 80 likes us."

The guess seems to be a bad one. Bob and Ray don't have a tremendous following, but it is a decidedly loyal one and certainly not as sparse as Ray indicates. Most of the critics praise the boys. The trade itself considers them far more clever than most of the comics working the TV circuit. Their fans can quote them endlessly. At first NBC was thoroughly sold on the pair, despite the fact that prospective sponsors stayed away in droves. Relations between the boys and the network "steadily worsened," as they say in the trade, and recently they signed a contract with ABC.

Bob (he's the shorter one) and Ray seem to derive most relish from kidding radio and television, their bread and butter. Cigarette commercials are among their pet targets. One memorable spoof was the "Forbush Frankfurter Test" in which four franks were disrobed of their casings to prove which was rounder, firmer, etc. Not only was "Forbush" a clear winner, but the makers of "Forbush Franks" debunked other frankfurter claims:

Bob (holding up a frankfurter): Frankfurter A claims to relieve gout, embolism, near-sightedness, itchiness and fleebus.

Ray: The makers of Frankfurter B claim it is kinder to the F zone—F for frank, F for furter. Yet 339 out of 340 physicians have testified there is no such zone.

Bob: "Forbush Frankfurters" claim nothing. Positive proof that "Forbush Frankfurters" are the best made.

For over a year Bob and Ray pounded away at cigarette comparison tests. Sample:

Interviewer (Bob): I see, sir, you are knocking a chip off the old block.

Ray (in carpenter's garb): That is correct.

Bob: Tell me, sir, have you ever seen me before or have you received any remuneration for this interview?

Ray: I have never seen you before nor have I received any remuneration for this interview.

Bob: Which chip off the old block would you like to knock off first—ours or yours?

Ray: I'll try yours first. (He proceeds to knock a chip off the block.)

Bob: Now, will you try our block, sir. (Ray complies.) Now, sir, you have knocked an old chip off your block and off our block. Which do you prefer?

Ray (enthusiastically): Oh, yours. Your chip flew more gracefully. And its milder—much milder.

The boys have run the gamut of soap operas, so that practically no soap is safe from their ribbing. Some of the Elliott-Goulding epics have unmistakable counterparts — Mary Backstayge, Noble Wife; Hartford Harry, Linda Lovely, Helen Harkness, Sob Sister, and Mr. Trace, Keener Than Most Persons. Although the sponsors of the show were none too happy, the cast of "Mary Noble, Backstage Wife," never failed to tune in the Bob and Ray parody of their show. The boys saw to it that even the plot lines were strikingly alike.

Bob and Ray's take-offs on overstocked sales, special offers and kits for all purposes, have drawn a shocking number of serious replies. Listeners have written to "I Want to Keep Up With the Joneses," NBC, New York, to obtain a as dissolute heir, phony TV set equipped with antenna "to show off to your neighbors." They have taken the boys up on offers of cracked phonograph records ("they were dropped just a few inches off the delivery truck."), sweaters with the letter "O" on them ("if your name doesn't begin with 'O' we can have it legally changed for you; sweaters come in two styles, turtle-neck or V-neck. State what kind of a neck you have."), deep freeze lockers, "deep enough to accommodate a family of four." The Kind Hunter's Kit was offered for "softhearted people who love to hunt but hate to kill." It contained bullets that drop to the ground and are packed with vitamins for the animals.

In an effort to find the right slot for Bob and Ray, NBC shunted the boys around, spotting them here and there. Some of the program switches were unfortunate ones.

The team's initial dip into TV was stormy. When the popular Kukla, Fran and Ollie were cut to 15 minutes, Bob and Ray were given the vacated spot. Which, of course, prompted outraged K.F.O. fans to brand the two radio comics as puppet-haters. They departed this early evening show a few months afterward.

When the boys finally landed a sponsor on a late-evening program, they ran into agency trouble or sponsoritis. It seems the men who sign the paychecks didn't dig their comedy stars and asked them to dish up a more obvious form of humor. "Throw pizza pies at each other," was one of the suggestions. After 13 weeks, when option time rolled around, Bob and Ray left the show by mutual consent.

The team is probably best remembered for its regular guest stints on Dave Garroway's morning show, Today. Garroway, a B. & R. fan, would solemnly introduce the two and the boys conducted interviews, with Bob generally handling the straight lines and Ray providing the answers.

Although their own ratings are modest, Bob and Ray have no qualms about spoofing some of the TV performers who boast tremendous audiences. Their favorite target is Arthur Godfrey—or, as portrayed by Bob—"Arthur Strudley and His No Talent Scouts." Dressed in a sailor suit, a First World War aviator's hat and strumming a ukulele, Bob gives a devastating impersonation—complete with "by gollys" and informal Godfrey-type commercials for "Metchnikoff's Caviar Teabags."

Their take-offs on Ed Sullivan ("We've flown in from the Middle East for their first American performance the only two-man Arabian drill team in the world. Let's give the boys a warm New York welcome."); Ed Murrow ("See It Now and Then"); Dragnet ("Fishnet") and the Stork Club (Ray in a one-sided conversation with two store dummies), rank as unequalled TV satires.

Like caviar and rutabagas, Bob and Ray don't appeal to all tastes. But lots of people consider TV's top satirists as pretty wonderful fare. Now if the Elliott-Goulding fandom can only convince the right people that ratings don't mean a thing . . .

SPORTSCASTERS ANSWER RED SMITH ON THE GREAT CURVEBALL QUESTION

By Guy Lebow
Second Vice President, Sports Broadcasters Association

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD of the Sports Broadcasters Association, representing its 40 or more members, takes strong exception to an article authored by Sports Writer Red Smith in TV GUIDE.

Mr. Smith, in our opinion, has lashed out in an unwarranted, crass and, we would prefer to believe, unsolicited attack on the sportscasting profession. Because of his method of half-truths, distortion of fact and unbelievably irresponsible use of quotes, we feel he has questioned the integrity of each individual sportscaster.

The author starts off by uttering disdain for any baseball announcer who claims he can differentiate between an inside pitch, a curve or what not 200 yards away. The batter and pitcher, according to Mr. Smith, seldom agree what has been thrown. Here, Mr. Smith lacks the reporter's researching methods. Were he to dig deeply, he would discover perspective is a great factor in focus. Isn't it easier to estimate a dance pattern from the back of a theater? Why not then the curve of a ball or its relation to the batter from a distance? With his obvious desire to create confusion, Mr. Smith quotes a batter as saying he hit one type pitch and the pitcher saying he threw another type. Therefore, if these two differ, how, Mr. Smith asks, can the announcer presume to be right?

Editor's Note: In his TV GUIDE column, Red Smith marveled that a baseball announcer "maybe 200 feet" behind home plate could tell his audience whether a pitch was a slider, screwball or whatever. This is the sportscasters' side of the question. Next week: Red Smith.

Mr. Smith, at first glance, seems to make his point. But the truth of the matter is that most experienced ballplayers, questioned about a ball at which they had swung, preface their answer with: "I think it was . . ." Those few words, you will admit, change the entire complexion. Actually, if the batter could tell accurately what he was receiving, he would get a hit most every time. The baseball announcer sees the pitch after it has completed its mission: curved . . . sunken . . . or sailed.

Usually, the announcer has a "book" on every pitcher in the league he broadcasts. Let's say Pitcher Jones has a fast ball, curve and screwball. He's a left-hander facing a left-handed batter. His first pitch curves into the batter. Result: the announcer concludes logically this is the screwball. He follows this logicalizing in all reports he must make within seconds. But more, Mr. Smith sneers as he berates the broadcaster for daring to call a slider pitch.

It's miraculous, says Mr. Smith, when you discover many ballplayers are not at all sure there is a slider pitch. It's equally miraculous Mr. Smith does not know, or perhaps does not wish to tell, the whole story. And the whole story is that an overwhelming number of players and experts do admit the existence of a slider.

For example, Frank Yeutter, Philadelphia baseball writer and former president of the Baseball Writers Association of America, in his book about Philadelphia Pitcher Jim Konstanty, calls him the greatest of all slider pitchers. Frankie Frisch and Rogers Hornsby, on a recent TV program, discussed the abilities of certain sliderball pitchers. And, writing for a sport magazine, Casey Stengel said there is a dearth of .300 hitters today compared to 20 years ago because today's young players have not learned to solve—yes, our good friend—the slider. Had enough?

How less ominous the average announcer would have been made to seem if Mr. Smith had admitted the practice of calling pitches originated with the great sports writers many years before the invention of radio, instead of being passed off as a poisoned brew dished up to make you, the listener and viewer, more susceptible to beer or cigarettes.

Mr. Smith reaches an incredibly low level of journalism when he uses quotation marks around the phrase attributed to sports announcers: "If they can hear this, they're not watching, and what they can't see won't hurt them." Quotes, as every school-boy writer knows, are used to narrate exact words—not the implication or approximate meaning, but the precise wording.

Which sports announcer, we ask, ever has made such a remark? To our knowledge, no one in the Sports Broadcasters Association, which includes almost every sportscaster and his writing assistant in New York City. It is damaging to every announcer for Mr. Smith to use quotes so wildly. Mr. Smith should name the specific announcer in fairness to all, but then it is obvious nothing in his article can be construed as fair.

For this article is unfair to the vast army of ambitious young men all over the country attending college and private classes, learning the business of sportscasting, striving hard to learn the sports, players and broadcasting techniques, training their eyes and minds for quick accurate assessments, dreaming of entering a dignified and respected profession, looking with understandable awe upon the decent men of the sportscasting profession who occupy high positions of acceptance with their public.

Mr. Lebow's statement is on behalf of these officers and members of the Sports Broadcasters Association: Joe Hasel, president; Sam Taub, first vice-president; Bob Allison, secretary; Len Dillon, treasurer; Bill Ackman, Larry Allen, Mel Allen, Sam Aro, Nat Ash, Judson Bailey, Red Barber, Buck Canel, Geoff Davis, John Derr, Jack Dillon, Jimmy Dolan, Don Dunphy, Bryan Field, Bob Finnegan, Jack Fraser, Major Al Frazin, Marty Glickman, Al Helfer, Russ Hodges, Harold Holtz, Ted Husing, Hal Janis, Paul Jonas, Frank Litsky, Stan Lomax, Bernie London, Ken Lydecker, Jocko Maxwell, Jack McCarthy, Dean Miller, Johnny Most, Harry Nash, Bob O'Connor, Bud Palmer, Kal Ross, Chris Schenkel, Vince Scully, Bill Slater, Tom Slater, Bob Smith, Bill Stern, Art Stockdale, Harry Wismer.

HOW TV LOOKS TO THE

They Like Adult Shows Better Than Network Kiddies Programs

By Marvin Epstein
Third Grade Teacher
Oak Lane Country Day School of Temple University

THE eight-year-old youngsters in my third grade class prefer adult television programs to the ones produced especially as kiddies' shows. And my class is as representative a cross-section of children as Temple University is able to select in and around Philadelphia.

the country, the television industry should do some program reshuffling.

Situation comedy shows, My Friend Irma, Date with Judy, Stu Erwin, I Married Joan, along with I Love Lucy, are the children's undisputable favorites. There are 19 children in my class and they turned in a total of 140 written reports on the programs they liked best. Of the 140 reports, 46 were on situation comedies. No one turned in a report on I Love Lucy because that program was discussed in class and the children agreed unanimously that they liked it.

These children said during our discussions that they don't like variety shows except Milton Berle's Star Theater, vintage of '52-'53. However their Critics at work: the author and his students discuss TV program qualifications.

Boys and girls of Oak Lane Country Day School, which is a laboratory school of the University, come from homes of varying economic levels and are of different races and religious faiths. If the likes and dislikes of this cross-section of children are similar to those of children in other parts of written reports reveal that they do indeed like certain other variety shows: the ones that satisfy the same appetite as comedies, westerns and adventure programs.

In their reporting the boys and girls did not miss many of the comedy programs beamed into the Philadelphia area. Included in this list of favorites are Mr. Peepers, The Nelsons, and Date With Judy. This type program apparently has two things that attract the children: from program to program the TV characters are familiar although the things they do are varied, and they do many things that the children themselves would like to do or have happen in their family group or small world.

THIRD-GRADERS

All the children liked Milton Berle's 1953 series. They look for "the funny parts with Milton and Maxie."

When the youngsters were asked when they began to like Milton Berle, unhesitatingly they said, "When Maxie came on." This change of format made the show more like their other

Red Buttons—"He plays like different people," "Red pretends to be a little boy." Arthur Godfrey—"I like the jokes and some singers," "It's funny," "Arthur's funny."

The excitement of You Asked For It makes for the other notable exception in the variety group. (As many children handed in written reports on this show as for the other three combined.) The children say, "There are dare-devils," "They have exciting things," "They show hard things to do," "There are people who do amazing things."

Western, adventure and mystery programs (they see many of the ones shown at a reasonable hour) provide the blood and thunder that children from time immemorial have sought. This is what they say about some of these shows: Roy Rogers—"It has adventure to it like a mystery," "Roy's dog is helping people." Lone Ranger—"It is exciting." "Tonto gets into trouble and the Lone Ranger gets him out," "The mask." Ramar of the Jungle—"It is exciting," "They go different places," "It's right in the jungle," "Ramar is helping people."

By vote and reports puppet shows do not fare badly. They say "Howdy Doody is interesting because it is full of fun. He shows the old-time movies—I would like more movies, and Howdy Doody is always getting in trouble." They like "Clarabelle and Mr. Bluster," and say, "The fancy names are funny," but it is "Babyish," and "It is too silly." Kukla, Fran and Ollie is "always different."

Quiz shows? Beat the Clock is "interesting," "funny," and "they do a lot of stunts." Strike It Rich—"Poor people win money."

The expressions about TV by this one group of boys and girls seem to substantiate that which psychologists and educators have known for a long time: for passive entertainment eight and nine-year-olds like adventure, mystery and detective stories, dramas of domestic life, slapstick and adult comic programs.

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

SoundStage

WITH the antics of the Aldrich Family apparently having run their course on TV, sponsors of that show recently replaced it with a new series of live, half-hour dramas. The new program, titled Campbell TV SoundStage, is sometimes good and sometimes bad but generally rates a look-in by fans of TV drama (NBC, Friday nights).

Like all TV shows which feature different casts and a different story each week, SoundStage is subject to the ability of its writers. And since TV has just about exhausted the supply of available one-act plays and short stories which might be adapted, it must depend almost entirely for story material on originals written especially for the show. There's where the difficulty enters.

Either the program's budget will not permit the hiring of better writers or else the producers think they can gamble with weak scripts. Whatever the reason, several of the stories spotted thus far on SoundStage would hardly have done credit to a Hollywood "B" movie. There is the same stilted emphasis on pseudo-psychological themes, pseudo-sophisticated farce and semi-suspense tales.

A recent story, for example, was a murder mystery set in a psychoanalyst's office. The script violated every tenet of good whodunit writing by telegraphing the climax within five minutes after the opening curtain. It was so obvious that it hurt. Another story dealt with a wife's endeavors to remake her husband's character and the ensuing troubles. Where have we heard that one before?

The actors appearing on SoundStage are mostly well-known TV performers who have learned the medium the hard way—by working in it week after week. They often are able to inject real quality into the show. Settings, camera work and other technical credits are good.—R. S.

DOWN YOU GO

DOWN YOU GO is one of the few TV "sleepers" of recent years. It cropped up unheralded on the Du Mont network, and almost immediately was hailed as a new departure in TV panel programs, offering erudition as well as entertainment. (Du Mont, Friday nights.)

Not the least of the program's innovations, but certainly one of the chief reasons for the program's success, is its moderator, Dr. Bergen Evans. Dr. Evans is a professor of English at Northwestern University. But far from being the traditional absent-minded professor, he has considerable wit, charm and humor, all of which he projects to TV viewers.

The game itself is a simple word-guessing contest. Originally, the program tended to emphasize quotes from classical plays, little-known titles, etc.

Dr. Bergen Evans: wit, charm and humor.

Recently, in an apparent effort to broaden the show's appeal, the panelists have been given easier quotes, some of the pun variety.

Sitting on the panel are Francis Coughlin, Toni Gilman, Carmelita Pope and Robert Breen. The two distaffers have brains as well as beauty, and the male members often surprise with their seeming wealth of knowledge about remote subjects.

Down You Go originates from the studios of Du Mont's affiliate station in Chicago.

FINE TUNING

By OLLIE CRAWFORD

UNDERWATER television sets shown in London. The channel they get best must be the English Channel.

These sets could be just the thing for sunken living rooms.

The sets cost $19,600 each, which is enough to sink most of us. The new set is sort of a Davy Jones' Looker. Instead of taking soundings, it will enable the British to take lookings. Television sets have been in some pretty tough dives, but nothing like this. Where these sets operate, the No. 1 tune on the Hit Parade is "Fifteen Men on a Dead Man's Chest."

TV sets now have demonstrated that they can operate in fresh water, salt water or seltzer water.

Perry Como sang: "Put your arms around me, honey, hold me tight," and two days later he got a fan letter from an octopus. They polled the mackerels on their favorite show and it turned out to be "I Love Loose Sea."

The next step will be a sea-going version of the Ezio Pinza show called Bonito.

The fish are a little wary of TV. They keep hearing that a Fisher with a Dragnet will pull them to Shore.
